Celebrating Pride and the Fight for Equality

From King County Executive Dow Constantine: "This month we celebrate Pride and the fight for equality and equal rights for LGBTQ+ people. It is a time to recognize the accomplishments and many contributions of LGBTQ+ people to our communities here in King County and around the world. It is also a time to reflect on the adversities that LGBTQ+ people have faced throughout history and their courage in the ongoing struggle against injustice. LGBTQ+ people continue to experience discrimination and fear in their personal and work lives, and these experiences are amplified for LGBTQ+ people of color who are also deeply impacted by racism and white supremacy. Every King County employee deserves to feel comfortable and supported to be their authentic selves at work every day of the year. One of our core County values is We respect all people, and that applies to every single one of our people – every King County employee deserves to be treated with respect. It is up to all of us to live up to our values and ensure that King County provides a culture of inclusion and respect."
